(Concluded.)

VI.—COMMERCIAL POWER.

The tradesmen of the preceding generation were thankful to become the managers and the shopwalkers of their inflated suppliers, and earned a livelihood by disposing of goods for their masters at a third of the price they had formerly asked and obtained for themselves. The plausible sophistries of political economy celebrated the commercial revolution as a triumph of the division of labour; but its moral effect on the people was as far-reaching as it was pernicious. Commercial power, hitherto divided with an approach to equality among a thousand merchants, now rested with a few groups, who absorbed and magnified the profits due to the labours of their subordinates. Of these the status of inferiority, without responsibility or opportunity, worked its necessary effect: they no longer possessed that vigour of character which is nourished by the consciousness of self-dependence and the habit of individual judgment.

When, as became ever more frequent, a great business was in the control of a limited company, the rigour of subordination verged upon the hopelessness of serfdom. The clerk of a personal employer might aspire for a partnership, and confidently demand humanity; but the servant of a body of directors sighed in vain for a position either of authority or of reasonable comfort. In this organisation of business, the peculiar product of the Victorian Age, the sense of responsibility slipped from the directors as from the directed; it was not their concern, so they argued, if employees were underpaid or the public cheated; all that was done was in the name and in the interests of the shareholders. These, in their turn, passing back their consciences to the directors, were satisfied to cloak their vicarious wickedness with a convenient ignorance.

While the fires of ambition were extinguished in the breasts of the lower, and the voice of conscience silenced among the higher, circles of commerce, a particular corruption was reserved for the consumers.

The wives of artisans and labourers had hitherto looked to their own industry for the clothing of themselves and their children—as the smaller conveniences of the slender household had been made in moments of leisure by the labour of the husband. The new methods of trading cheapened everything, and especially clothing, to a price within the compass of the poorest; but in doing so it rudely broke the tie which bound the lower classes to their homes. The wife, who had been wont to pass the evening in the manufacture of garments for her children, now bought them at some great emporium; and emancipated at once from the necessity of work and the practice of frugality, devoted the evenings to idle gossip or empty frivolity. On her trivial excursions she would be accompanied by her young children, which exposed their delicate immaturity to cold at the hours when it should have been fortified by sleep. The husband and father, no longer finding in his home the companionship craved by his brief hours of relaxation, sought it with better success at one of the gaudy public-houses, whose lights at the corner of every street attested the vices and the misfortunes of the poor. The happy home of the British plebeian passed from a reality to a proverb and from a proverb to a fable, and the fair picture of the past gave place to a blur of drunkenness, indolence, and disease.

The prevailing deterioration, which did not overlook the lowest, fastened greedily upon the highest ranks of the population. The Court, as a standard of polite manners, had almost ceased to exist. The retired life of the venerable Victoria during her later years left the leadership of fashion vacant, and the landed nobility was too impoverished, as well as too proud, to struggle for the viceregency. The field of so-called society was left open to any adventurer with the effrontery to usurp it. Thus arose an inner circle of fashion, or, to call it by its contemporary and more appropriate name, of smartness, based neither upon birth nor elegance of manners, nor even invariably upon wealth, but rather upon a bold and clever arrogance, and supported in the general estimation mainly by brazen advertisement. An aristocracy of birth may be unintelligent, but it has usually fixed and sustained a high standard of deportment and, within certain limitations of conduct. But a society like that of London, where the loudest voice was the most eagerly listened to, was immediately fatal to every canon of propriety and good taste. In effrontery of demeanour, in license of speech, in gaudiness of dress, in the very use of paints and cosmetics, the Englishwomen of fashion drifted farther and farther from their father's modest ideal of a lady—till at length there was no wanting the final scandal of women with honest reputations studying and imitating with a too easy fidelity the costumes and allurements of the most notorious French courtesans.

VIII.—SUPPRESSION OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

The love of letters might have been expected to oppose a barrier to the all-conquering vulgarity of the age. It was diffused over every class of society; the commonest labourer had acquired a taste for reading; Tennyson and Hall Caine were the themes of dissertations in the mining centres of the north and the pulpits of dissenting chapels. Never had books been so abundantly published or so widely read; the general average of literary merit had never been so high; but this age of mediocrity passed away without having produced a single writer of original genius, or who excelled in the arts of excellent composition. With the vast increase of readers promoted by the spread of elementary education, the social standing, as the monetary rewards of authorship increased in equal proportion; but this age, while it lowered the standard of taste, at once inflamed the cupidity and diverted the ambition of men of letters; and what once had been a single-minded devotion generated into a trade, pursued rather for its accidental emoluments than for its intrinsic charm. The rates of pay of novelists were quoted by the agents like the prices of stock on the Exchange, or the chances of a horse race; and he who, by economising his genius, might have been a master, squandered his stores in profuse overproduction.

With the plethora of books came a surfeit of commentaries on work which juster canons would have left to the revision of posterity. A cloud of critics of anthologists, and of logrollers darkened the face of letters, and upon the decline of genius soon followed the corruption of taste. The last outrage upon the language of Shakespeare and Fielding was a swarm of periodical leaflets, concocted of illiterate novelties, unmeaning statistics, American jests and in prodigious quantities by the lower order, and, by ruining the business of those who purveyed sincere if not masterly compositions, contributed more than any other cause to the debasement and final extinction of English letters.

With the proud spirit of empire sunk into the narrow greed of the shareholder; with physical force at its ebb, sports corrupted, and martial spirit tamed; with domestic business so organised that it stifled individuality and fostered dishonest miserliness among traders, and invited the depravity of customers with elegant manners and polite letters a tasteless relic of the half-forgotten past—the British Empire entered upon the twentieth century under the gloomiest auspices. To the acuter eyes of succeeding generations that gloom is heightened by the reflection that the mutterings of the coming earthquake were all unheeded by contemporaries; that they prided themselves on the greatness of their dominion, and hugged the specious perfection of their civilisation. Yet decline was already accomplished and irremediable, and fall was too surely impending.

The fair city still stood, but men were wanting within it. Vulgarity, mediocrity, and cheapness had warped and stunted the most generous natures. The minds of all were reduced to the same level, the high spirit of empire evaporated, and little interests, with sordid emotions, inspired every soul. Civilisation had completed its work in the suppression of the individual, and the British, the most virile of barbarians, the most forward and energetic of mankind, were designated by their very virtues as the first to experience the dire results of its consummation. The diminutive stature of mankind was daily sinking below the old standard; Britain was indeed peopled by a race of pigmies, and the puny breed awaited only the onset of the first crisis to become the woeful patient of defeat and ruin.

ACCIDENT IN AN ENGLISH COAL PIT.

While working in a Hanley coal pit some years ago John Henshall lost an eye from a spark at the pick-end. The injury set up inflammation, which compelled the doctors to remove the eye. Finding his occupation as a miner gone, he has since worked as a gardener and at odd work. He is a most respectable and intelligent man, the victim of repeated misfortunes.

Mr. John Henshall.

Victim of an accident at Hanley.

"I am getting on in years," he said—"nearly sixty-eight—and since I lost my eye I have done no work in the pits. That is, however, not the only trouble I have had. For two years I was laid up with an attack of liver complaint which caused acute indigestion. I also suffered from nervous debility. I had agonising pains in the head, and was subject to feelings of giddiness. I was hardly able to eat, and got into a very weak, low, and depressed state of health. Indeed, I used to feel at times like a man out of his mind, and but for Dr. Williams' pink pills I don't know what would have become of me."

"To see if I could get any benefit," said Mr. Henshall, continuing his story, "I went to Rhyl, and spent three weeks at one of the convalescent homes there. But I got no better; in fact, while I was at Rhyl I thought my end was approaching, and feeling that I should rather die at home, I came back to Staffordshire. I still suffered on my return, and for a time I became an out-patient at the North Staffordshire Infirmary. It was Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people that eventually cured me."

"How came you to take them?" "Why, my son came from the North of England to visit me, and to see if the change would do me any good I went back with him to his home. My son was at that time taking Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people, and he gave me some to try. I took the greater part of a bottle and in a fortnight they made a new man of me. I was able to go to work."

"And how is your health to-day?" was the next question. "Oh, I am much better," replied Mr. Henshall. "I have a better appetite, my nerves are stronger, and I seem to have more vigour in me. Considering my age, I am feeling very fit indeed."

Mr. Henshall, asked if he had any objection to his story being published, said: "I have only told you what is true, and there can be no objection to that being published."

The experience of Mr. Henshall is that of many who have suffered from diseases arising from poor blood and shattered nerves—anaemia, bile, consumption, eczema, headache, indigestion, kidney diseases, rheumatism, scrofula. Dr. Williams' pink pills have cured these and other diseases in countless cases. Women they especially help in those characteristic troubles which they do not talk about. The pills are not a cure-all. They cure by action on the blood and on the nerves, curing fits, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, neuralgia. Only the genuine pills, bearing Dr. Williams' name, cure. Substitutes never cure. Genuine pills cost free from Williams' Medicine Company, Holborn-viaduct, London, for two shillings and ninepence; but can be had at all medicine shops if you take care to get the right ones, which did so much good to this victim of Accident and Misfortune.

THE MOUNT PEELE OBELISK.

A remarkable photograph taken by Mr. E. O. Hovey, is reproduced in the Scientific American. It represents one of the most peculiar and interesting phenomena of the recent eruptions of Mount Pelee. This was the growth of the tooth-like column of rock which arose out of the centre of the crater. It was first observed (by Professor Lacroix) in October, 1902, amid the dense smoke and steam overhanging the mountain. It was then estimated to be about 295 feet above the rim of the old crater. But subsequent observations proved it to be steadily growing, and after some months it had attained a height of over 1000 feet. Professor Heilprin noted a growth of about 50 feet in four days.

Various explosions and movements of the earth altered the relative height of the obelisk. It rose and fell and large portions became detached. Bit by bit then receded again, sinking as much as 150 feet during one night, but frequently rising again temporarily. This continued during many months, till finally it disappeared within the cone.

The cause of this curious phenomenon can be vaguely surmised. It has been suggested that the rest of the volcano in older days had become filled with solidified lava, and when the first outbreak occurred this whole mass was raised bodily up as cork is forced upward from a bottle.

THREE-fourths of a million passengers arrive at Canton in a year; and in view of the actual dearth of coin in that city during 1903, occasioned by the military operations in Kwangsi, it is thought probable that these passengers (even if there were no returned emigrants among them) left behind them more coin than they took away.

INSPECTOR Hudson placed Wong Sam before Mr. Gompertz at the Police Court this morning on the charge of buying a girl named Li Choi Ying, from Tse Tsam, for $30, and detaining her in a house of ill fame against her will. The woman went on Thursday to the office of the Registrar General to register another girl in her house, but was followed by Li Choi Ying, who there made the complaints against Wong Sam, and stated that she wished to be a good girl and go to work in the house of a dressmaker. The woman was promptly arrested, but on the application of Mr. D'Almada, solicitor, she was released on bail of $1,000. The woman's defence will be heard on Monday afternoon.

M. BEAU, the Governor-General of French Indo-China, now finds the disadvantages of a commanding personality in raising up enemies who would fain see high office taken from him. Unable as they are to undermine his position, they unceasingly strive to turn public opinion against him by making out that he seeks to be relieved from the Governor-Generalship. Rumours to this effect have over and over again been proved to be groundless. But for all that, fresh reports of the same kind continue to be spread. Paris especially minis these rumours. The last one, set a-going early last month, gave it out that General Gallieni, the Governor-General of Madagascar, would shortly replace M. Beau. This story, too, had only a short run before it was authoritatively contradicted. The real fact is that M. Beau, who did indeed go to France this summer, has been made up to go to the Congo, owing to the French Government's war.

THE China Navigation Co.'s steamer Woonung will proceed to Shanghai to-morrow.

As a result of the fire which took place in Gough Street, some three weeks ago, the Chinese residents of the house are now under trial on the charge of arson. The case was called on at the Police Court yesterday and remanded.

WE are requested to state that, as the Police authorities object to Professor Zancig's hypnotized sleeper being exhibited in the main thoroughfare of the city, which may be the means of the traffic being obstructed by the large gathering collected near the show window, the manager of the Troubadours has decided to place the hypnotized subject on free exhibition all day to-morrow in the corridor of the Connaught Hotel instead of in Messrs. Ullmann's store.

THE Lancet reports that the Iowa "Society for the Suppression of Disease and Degeneracy" has prepared a Bill to be submitted to the Legislature of the State providing that, before a marriage licence can be issued to any person in that State, a physician's certificate of examination must be obtained, showing that the said person is physically and mentally qualified to enter into married state under the laws of that State. The State of Iowa has long been in the front rank as regards sanitary, social, and political reforms, and this new departure will be watched with great interest.

THE BRIBERY CASE.

The case in which a cattle dealer was charged with giving a bribe of two $10 notes to the child of Inspector Watson, on the 31st inst., as reported in the Telegraph last evening, was called on this afternoon, at the Police Court, when Mr. Kemp said that there was quite sufficient evidence to convict by reason of the fact that defendant going to the house, where he had never been before, and asking for the inspector; also of his having the envelopes containing the $10 notes ready prepared; and of his giving such a large amount to such a small child. The man was then formally committed to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions, bail being allowed in the sum of $2,500 cash.

A LAND GRABBING CASE.

Charges were preferred against Chun Ng Chung, at the Police Court this afternoon, for having, on the 2nd of March, and other dates, personated Chan Cheung with intent to obtain possession of certain land at Yau-mai, also with forging the name of Chan Cheung to an application for a Crown Lease for the same property; and further, with intent to defraud Chan Cheung, on the 7th of March, endeavouring to induce the Officer Administering the Government to execute a Crown Lease for property situated at Kowloon. The wife of the defendant was also charged as an accessory before and after the fact.

Mr. Goldring, solicitor, of Mr. J. Hastings' office, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. F. P. Hett, solicitor, of Mr. G. K. Hill Britton's office, appeared for the defence.

Mr. Goldring applied to have both the cases tried together, as the evidence would be identical.

Mr. Hett objected to this course, on the ground that, after hearing the evidence for the prosecution, he might wish to call one defendant as witness on behalf of the other in either case.

After some discussion, Mr. Kemp, the Magistrate, decided that it would be better to try the cases separately.

The case against the first defendant was then begun and is proceeding, the defendant pleading "not guilty."

THE CITY HALL.

As we were going to press last evening the annual meeting of those interested in the City Hall was being held in the Library. There were present the Hon. C. W. Dickson, Hon. H. E. Pollock, K.C., Messrs. B. Layton, H. W. Bird, N. A. Siebs, H. N. Mody and F. B. L. Bowley (secretary).

The report for the 18 months ending 31st December, 1903, was submitted as follows:—The last annual meeting was held on the 26th day of February, 1903.

Committee and Staff.—There have been no changes in the Committee since the last meeting, and it now consists of Hon. C. W. Dickson, Chairman, Messrs. B. Layton (Hon. Treasurer), H. N. Mody, N. A. Siebs, and C. S. Sharp and Hon. H. E. Pollock, K.C. Mr. Horsbouse acted as Secretary from 1st July, 1902, to 31st November, 1903, during Mr. Bowley's absence. The City Hall suffered a great loss in July, 1903, in the death of Mr. Lau A Yau, who was comrade at the City Hall for over thirty years.

The Staff of the Building.—The usual annual examination of the building was made by the architects, Messrs. Palmer and Turner, in October, 1903, and the floors of the S. George's and S. Andrew's Halls were found to be quite sound. Several defective beams in the roofs were renewed and other necessary repairs effected. The amount spent on ordinary repairs during the 18 months ending 31st December, 1903, was $3,032.46. The architects report that extensive repairs to the roofs will shortly be necessary. Two new urinals have been fixed, at a cost of $1,164.50, and constitute a great sanitary improvement on the old-fashioned fittings which they have replaced.

Theatre, &c.—During the 18 months ending 31st December, 1903, the Theatre was let to the Amateur Dramatic Club, Mr. Bragg, Mr. Dallas, Pollock's Lilliputian and Comedy Company, and many other minor companies and troupes. The total receipts of the Theatre during the 18 months ending 31st December, 1903, were $1,164.50, and the total expenditure was $1,164.50.

ing of Auditorium and adapting the stage to the requirements of modern scenery, at a total cost of $1,164.50. The tariff of rents was raised considerably from 1st January, 1903, in order to meet the fall in exchange, and the receipts show a more than corresponding increase.

The Library.—110 books published in Hongkong were deposited in the Library; numerous newspapers and periodicals have been kindly presented by members of the Committee, by Mr. Barton, Mr. B. Wiley, Mr. H. E. Tomkins, the Hongkong Club, the proprietors of the local newspapers, and of the Government Gazette, and others. In December, 1903, the Hongkong Public Library was closed and its valuable collection of books was presented to the Lending Collection of the City Hall Library and amalgamated with it. The joint collection has been catalogued by the Secretary, and now contains about 2,800 volumes of modern literature. The number of visitors to the Library during the 18 months ending 31st December, 1903, was 17,571 non-Chinese and 5,591 Chinese; the number of resident ticket-holders for the Lending Collection was 168 on 31st December, 1903, of whom 14 are Chinese. The free reading-room and lending collection are increasingly appreciated by many sections of the population.

Museum.—There have been no important additions to the Museum, which suffers from the lack of scientific supervision and from climatic influences, but it is still much appreciated by Chinese residents and visitors. The Museum was visited by many thousands of Chinese and a large number of Europeans during the 18 months under review.

Accounts.—The balance in the hands of the Hon. Treasurer when the accounts for 1903 were closed was $3,938.34. The reserve fund on fixed deposit in the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank has been increased by adding accrued interest and now amounts to $15,167.71. The expenditure exceeded the ordinary receipts (excluding amount brought forward and interest on fixed deposit) by $1,235.41; this excess is much more than accounted for by the improvements in the Theatre. It has been decided to close the accounts in future on 31st December instead of 30th June, and in order to effect this change the accounts cover a period of 18 months.

The Chairman said—Gentlemen, the report and accounts have been circulated, and I propose to take them as read. It will be noticed that they cover a period of eighteen months, ending 31st December last. In previous years the report and accounts have been brought up to the 30th June, but it is proposed in future to close them at the end of each calendar year. The committee regret the death of the old comrade Lau A Yau, which occurred last summer; his many years' experience was invaluable to the organisers of entertainments, and it will be difficult to fill his place. It will be noticed that the tariff of rents for the theatre and halls was increased considerably in January, 1903, and the result has been an increase of revenue. On the other hand, an extensive scheme of improvement was taken in hand last year, and completed during the off season at a heavy expense. The theatre has been much improved by the re-modelling of the dress circle in accordance with suggestions made by Mr. Robert Brough, and by the extension of the electric light to the auditorium and the raising of the floor of the stalls; the lavatories, too, have been brought up to date, the total cost being over $6,500. The collection of books presented by the Hongkong Subscription Library, as mentioned at the last annual meeting, has been amalgamated with the existing lending collection and catalogued. The combined collections constitute a free-lending library on a small scale, which is increasingly appreciated; the library is also much used as a reading-room. It is to be regretted that the terms of the respective trusts preclude the amalgamation of the old "City Library" collections with the newer books. It is practically impossible to improve the Museum, as there is no qualified naturalist or taxidermist on the staff, and, in the absence of any endowment, the committee are unable to engage one. The institution pays its way, but returns no interest on the original capital expended.

The motion, seconded by the Hon. Pollock, was put to the meeting and carried, and the proceedings terminated.

THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY.

At the present crisis the eyes of the world in general, and of Russia and Japan in particular, are turned towards what may prove to be the most important factor in deciding the great war now commencing between two powers, one of them of standing amongst civilized races of the West, and the other a rapid but sturdy product of the Farthest East. That the railway only just finished, linking up Europe with North-East Asia, is a work not only of immense importance to the spread of trade and commerce, there are few who will deny. And whatever Russia's motives may have been in inaugurating a work of such magnitude, we cannot but grant to her the fullest meed of credit for the successful carrying through of a scheme so ambitious and presenting such difficulties at the outset as to surrender many expert engineers most sceptical as to the eventual result of the enterprise.

The railway is nevertheless unfailingly accomplished, and even in the short period that it has been opened to the traffic of the world, it has more than justified its existence, and has given startling proof to the doubting that communication, even through the most barren and desolate tracts of the earth's surface, may yet be of value to the world at large, and prove more-over remunerative to the founders of the scheme.

With the Trans-Siberian Railway civilized nations are only concerned from its commercial value. Not so, however, the nation who is responsible for its existence. Russia is a nation of vast resources, and she is not only a nation of vast resources, but she is a nation of vast resources.

and the sea for the purpose of trade and commerce. But at the same time, Russia has from very early times shown a strong tendency towards an extension of her territories by right of conquest. Her history throughout is evidence of this tendency; for, although some of these expansions have not been wrought with violence, they have not started with a basis of colonization, nor with a view to an outlet being obtained for surplus population or commerce, as has been the case generally with other European nations.

Hence we may take it for granted that this great work—great in inception as in execution—was not designed primarily with a view to an outlet for expanding trade, or to facilitate communication between the East and West.

No. It is almost certain that the statesman on whose initiative this work was first started had in mind other immediate objects than the advantage of mankind. He had, as one would judge from a knowledge of the man, a profound desire for the advancement of his country into a power whose territory would extend nearly across two continents, and with which, when once surely established, no other nation on earth could hope to vie.

To this end was this work then commenced, and at a sacrifice of enormous toil and outlay was carried to a conclusion. But what was the object aimed at, may be asked, apart from the nominal conquest of Northern Asia?

The answer to this question is not far to seek. Russia has for many years past been casting covetous eyes on the Empire of China—a country vaster by far than herself, richer by far in natural resources than herself, and yet, as she judged and judged rightly, easy of conquest by a Western race, if that race were unscrupulous in its methods and lavish in its promises.

This aim was the raison d'être of the railway that now crosses Northern Asia; for it was hoped and believed by those that made it that with such a railway linking up Russia to the Farthest East, China must be at the mercy of Western power, as indeed has proved the case.

But—and this could not have entered into the calculations of the founders of the scheme—it has proved that the absorption of China into the Russian Empire affects more than the two countries primarily concerned. The whole civilized world is interested in greater or less degree in the fate of so huge a country as China. Interests are universally involved, and more so than all in the case of a new and struggling nation rising on the far eastern confines of Asia. To Japan, of all others, was it essential that China should be open to the demands of trade and commerce; for it is the nearest mainland, and promised in time to supply extensive markets for her goods, as well as openings in every kind of enterprise for the pioneers of this rising kingdom.

This then is the cause of the Far Eastern question, and from it may be seen why the Japanese look upon it as vital to their prosperity, and even to their existence as a nation, that China should not become the close preserve of a jealous and autocratic power. Apart from this, however, the question of the great railway remains. Whether against the Japanese or against the Chinese, to pour troops from Europe into eastern Asia was clearly its object from the beginning. That against the latter the line might have been equal to the task required of it, may be assumed to be possible; for this could have been done leisurely and by slow degrees, province after province being thus absorbed. Against a determined and energetic foe like the Japanese however the means provided may, and probably will, prove inadequate. It is a line well fitted, no doubt, for slowly filtering troops through from west to east. But it is vulnerable at points for some thousands of miles of its length, and it is eminently ill-adapted to convey large forces in a short period of time over the whole course of its length.

It is in fact at the present juncture a source of weakness to Russia rather than of strength. It represents millions of capital, and must at all costs be guarded. It therefore will lock up thousands of troops in effecting this, even if it is successfully carried out; and at the same time it will not fulfil the desired end, namely, of being a rapid means of transit for troops and stores from west to east—at least in sufficient quantity, to meet the necessities of the case.

Again every mile of it that falls into the hands of the Japanese will be invaluable to them as linking them up to the sea, which they now dominate.

That the Trans-Siberian Railway may be to the world an enormous benefit in the future is undoubted, but—and this is the all important fact—it can never be so in the hands of an ambitious and grasping power.—MANDARIN, in Range n Times.

THE INTER-VARSITY BOAT RACE.

A special cable says that, despite the early hour of 8 a.m. and the cheerless weather, the river was thick with people to witness the University Boat Race.

Cambridge won the Surrey station, and Oxford immediately led, rowing powerfully while the Cambridge crew were going easily. At the mile the Oxonians were a length ahead, and shortly afterwards were clear. Then the Light Blue (Cambridge) quickening began overhauling their rival, and only a quarter of a length separated them at Hammermith Bridge. A moment later Cambridge had gained the lead, and the struggle had been of the most desperate kind, but the effect of Oxford's early effort was now obvious, as they began to pull away.

ADMIRAL MAKAROFF'S DEATH.

PROFOUND SENSATION IN JAPAN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

YOKOHAMA, 15th April.

10 a.m.

When the official confirmation of the death of Admiral Makaroff, which was at first discredited in Japan, was circulated, the most profound sensation was created.

The vernacular papers are unanimous in their expressions of regret of his decease, and refer to him in terms of high praise.

THE "PETROPAVLOVSK'S" CLAIM.

Rear-Admiral Uriu, of Chemulpo fame, who was commanding the third destroyer division, claims the honour of having sunk the battleship Petro-pavlovsk and a Russian destroyer.

He further reports that the ships under his command sustained no damage.

FIRE IN QUEEN'S ROAD.

FIVE HOUSES BURNED.

Another fire that has to be noted will go to swell considerably the amount of property destroyed by the conflagrations already recorded this year. The outbreak occurred about 11 p.m. yesterday, at No. 288, Queen's Road Central, the flames spreading rapidly to Nos. 286 and 290, the houses adjoining on either side. No. 284 was slightly damaged with water from the hoses used in extinguishing the fire in the other houses, but the amount of damage done there was quite considerable. The ground floor of the building in which the fire originated was used as a tea shop, while the upper stories were occupied by the tea dealers as dwelling houses. The fire broke out in the second floor, the upper part of the house being completely gutted, while the tea-shop was also considerably damaged. The damage to the house and shop is estimated at $10,000, but it was covered to the extent of $8,000 in various insurance offices. The other houses were also insured to the full extent of the damage sustained. The first indication of the outbreak to the firemen at the Central Station was the bright glare observable over the house, and the men, under Mr. E. R. Hallifax and Mr. MacDonald, Chief Engineer, quickly started for the scene of the outbreak. Upon arriving at the burning buildings they found the fire had been raging merrily for some considerable time, the upper part of No. 288 being fairly ablaze. They at once got to work, and did all that was possible to quell the flames, but as it was at once clear that it was too late to save the first house, and as the fire was already spreading to the house adjoining, their energies were directed to confining the flames within as small an area as possible. Finally, after working for an hour and a half the fire was put out. A great cause for the outbreak could be ascertained, beyond the "probable" spreading of a lamp.

The War.

News from St. Petersburg says that the Japanese fleet having appeared off Port Arthur, the Russian fleet put to sea and pursued a portion of the enemy's forces, which later being reinforced, bringing their total to 29 ships, the Russian fleet returned to harbour. On the way back the Petropavlovsk struck a mine which exploded and capsized the battleship. The captain, five officers and 32 men, all wounded, were saved. Admiral Makaroff and the whole of his staff were drowned. The Grand Duke Cyril was saved in a wounded condition; his brother the Grand Duke Boris watched the catastrophe from another ship.

BISMARCK & CO.

SOLICITORS AND CLIENTS.

Sitting in Appellate Jurisdiction, at the Supreme Court this afternoon, the Chief Justice, Sir W. M. Goodman, with whom was the Puisne Judge, Mr. T. Sercombe Smith, spoke a few plain words regarding the carelessness that is sometimes displayed in the filing of motions, and said that both his learned brother and himself were agreed that if attention was not paid to the form in which papers were filed solicitors would have to pay the costs out of their own pockets. The remarks were the outcome of a motion made by Kwong Kam Cheuen, Kwong Sui Ling, Lau Ching Ming and Pui Cheong Tong alias Tong Pui Cheong Tong, trading as Hop Sing Tong, that the applications by way of appeals from the decision of Mr. Justice Wise be dismissed, and that the moneys standing in Court to the credit of the actions be paid to the respondents or their solicitors.

The Hon. H. E. Pollock, K.C. (instructed by Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton) appeared on behalf of the appellant, Kwok Chiu Kin, who was a partner, with the respondents, in Bismarck & Co., a firm carrying on business in Hongkong and Port Arthur, and Mr. E. H. Sharp, K.C. (instructed by Mr. E. J. Grist, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist) represented the respondents. Mr. Sharp explained that the facts were, shortly, that the respondents and Kwok Chiu Kin were formerly in partnership in Hongkong, trading under the name of Bismarck & Co., who had a branch in Port Arthur, of which Kwok Chiu Kin was in charge.

The Chief Justice intimated that, before the details of the case were gone into, there was a matter which he would like to have cleared up. What the appellants had to do, if they wished to appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Wise, was to make an application for leave to appeal. He had searched the files, but could find no motion to that effect, although he noticed that considerable time was taken up in October and November on a motion which appeared to be for leave to appeal. Since then he had ascertained that the papers were not in order.

Mr. Sharp observed that he would make the point a preliminary objection—that the notice of motion by way of appeal is irregular. There was no right to appeal except as expressly conferred by statute.

Mr. Pollock pointed out that there was a special order made by the Court below.

The Chief Justice:—It cannot give leave to appeal.

Mr. Sharp:—It cannot override the Ordinance.

The Chief Justice drew Counsel's attention to the fact that some time ago Mr. Sharp and Mr. Slade both suffered owing to motion papers being in the wrong form, and they desired them put right, but the Court gave a formal ruling stipulating that, unless all the statutory terms were complied with in regard to appeal, the Court below has the right to obtain judgment.

Mr. Pollock admitted that it would have been better in the present instance if the application had been for leave to appeal.

The Chief Justice:—You were arguing the appeal before obtaining leave to do so. I cannot see how we have any jurisdiction to hear you. We cannot hear an appeal unless leave has been granted.

After further argument, His Lordship said he was sorry to have to dispose of cases in such a way, but irregularities must be put a stop to. The notice paper on which Mr. Pollock moved did not comply with section 41 of the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinance, and in the circumstances the application by way of appeal would be dismissed and the money deposited in Court paid out.

As mentioned above, the Chief Justice subsequently said that, in view of the carelessness that was sometimes displayed in filing motions, clients might have to pay very much more than they would have done if they should have to pay the costs of the application on their behalf were they dismissed. He mentioned it because it is important that the matter be brought to the attention of the public, and he thought it would be better to say so now than later.

THE WAR.

PORT ARTHUR BOMBARDMENT.

We are indebted to Mr. M. Noma, Consul for Japan, for the following communication:—

Tokyo, 14th April, 7 p.m.

A telegram received by the Government at Tokyo from Rear-Admiral Uryu, the Commander of a detached squadron, states that it is reported by one of our torpedo flotillas that one of our squadrons made close approach to Port Arthur on the 13th inst., and opened fire on the Russian fleet.

During the battle the Japanese warships sank a Russian battleship of the Petropavlovsk class, and also a torpedobomb-destroyer. The whole of our offensive squadron is safe.

The official report from Admiral Togo has not yet been received.

In connection with our wires from the north, printed in yesterday's issue, it was seen that the main Russian force, or some thirty thousand men, is concentrating at Antung-hsien, the commercial centre on the Manchurian shore of the Yalu River. The place lies about fifteen miles above Yungampho, on the opposite bank, and until lately the site of the present town was occupied by millet fields. Under the care of native merchants a prosperous port has been established, the business houses being unusually flourishing. The anchorage is thronged with junks, the port possessing facilities for steamers, which makes it superior to Ta-tung-kao or Yungampho and at once the real business centre on the river. Striking away from Antung-hsien is the Peking Great Road which runs to Liao-yang, while just above the stream divides, the eastern branch being the Yalu. At this point the river becomes shallow and quite unnavigable except for small native craft and the timber rafts. Wiju is ten miles to the east of Antung-hsien.

ST GEORGE TO FIGHT.

EXTRAORDINARY SUPERSTITION OF RUSSIAN PEASANTRY.

The Moscow correspondent of the Daily Chronicle writing on March 1st gives this strange glimpse into popular emotions and ideas in Russia as affected by the war. He says:—

A remarkable example of the superstition of the Russian peasants is reported from Tomsk. Since the outbreak of the war the villages in the neighbourhood are in an intense state of religious excitement. Numbers of peasants throng the streets daily, and though they cannot pay the money for the railway journey, they beg to be allowed to go to Moscow to pray for the success of the Russian troops.

The reason for this wave of religious fervour is due to the fact that the peasants declare they have seen in the heavens a blood-red hand, gripping the cross-shaped hill of a sword. They believe it to be the hand of St George the Victory-Bringer.

Their enthusiasm and superstition has been further stirred up by a priest named Athanasius, who has prophesied, that in three months' time St. George himself will appear, seated on a flaming horse, and gallop across Siberia to the sea, so as to strike fear into the heathen hearts of the Japanese.

The armies of the Tsar, predicts Athanasius, will gain a mighty victory, and the Sea of Japan will dry up, as the Red Sea did before the Israelites, so that Russians may march victoriously into Tokyo.

There is a quaint belief among the inhabitants of the Russian villages that General Skobelev, the hero of Plevna, is not dead, but that he has just been detained in a dungeon, from which he has just been released to take command of the army in the Far East.

The legend goes that one day Skobelev came to the Tsar and said, "Sire, let me make war on the Germans." To which the Tsar replied, "Impossible, my son, the Germans are our good neighbours."

Then, Skobelev came a second time and said, "Sire, let me make war on the English." And the Tsar replied, "Impossible. The English are the best customers we have."

Again, a third time, came Skobelev, and pleaded to be allowed to make war with Turkey, whereupon the Tsar grew angry, and caused him to be exiled to the dungeon of Sucharew, saying, "You shall remain there until you can speak Japanese, and you shall not speak Japanese until the time comes when I shall make war against Japan."

Now, this war has commenced, and Skobelev has come from his dungeon to take his place at the head of the troops who are fighting against the Mikado's troops.

This is the story which the peasants recite to one another with childlike simplicity and faith.

ITEMS.

King Edward in the course of an interview with the leader of the Arbitration parliamentary group from France expressed a hope that the press of all nations, English included, would endeavour to alleviate the difficulties in the present international crisis. His Majesty remarked that he was quite distressed over the Russo-Japanese war which was a most deplorable event. On the other hand, he found that the good understanding with France had never been more useful than at the present time because, besides the individual interest being on good terms with each other, France and England have even higher interest in the restoration and maintenance of the general peace. If complications arose it would then be more particularly for France and England to render the greatest service. Whatever happens this union must closely be maintained for the benefit of all.

News has been received at Bombay from an unimpeachable source that the Russians have a secret coal supply at the island of Jebel Zugur and the warships which have been patrolling the Red Sea have obtained their necessary supplies there, at least one large collier, probably several others, is concealed in one of the inlets behind the island. The island of Jebel Zugur is the largest of a cluster of islands which lie off the south-eastern coast of the Arabian peninsula at a distance, roughly estimated, of about 200 miles to the north of Perim isle.

It is stated there is good authority for saying that the moderation of Japan's last note to Russia was due to the influence of the British Foreign Office. The disclosure has increased Parliamentary feeling in favour of Japan.

KUROPAKIN IN THE FIELD.

THE MEMORABLE CAREER OF RUSSIA'S WAR LORD.

The great Tsars of Russia, somebody said, when they want a man, go out into the street and find one. It is another way of saying that the Tsar's Ministers spring from nowhere.

It is almost true. Russia has had an Empress who began life as a peasant and married a Swedish dragoon, and it was an Armenian who all but destroyed the autocracy of the Tsars and set Russia among the progressive nations. Sergius de Witte, descendant of a Dutchman, started at wayside railway station on the career which has brought him almost to the head of the State.

So, too, with the man who to-day holds the keys of all the mysteries of the great Russian war machine. Alexei Nikolaievitch Kuropatkin, who is to leave on Thursday to take command of the troops in Manchuria, began life as a sub-lieutenant. His early days were lived in an atmosphere of war. Russia was at war then, as she is now, and the founding of a great empire in the unknown immensities of Asia was the dream of the soldiers and statesmen who were building up the Russia of to-day. The great highways of Asia had fallen under her control, and the conquest of the Caucasus was within her grasp. The spirit of war was abroad in the land, and Kuropatkin heard the beating of its wings.

THE CONQUEST OF ASIA.

It was a time for young men to dream dreams. The veil of mystery was slowly being lifted from the great Islam wonderland. Tashkent fell one morning, and in the evening General Cherniaieff was drinking tea with the Tsar's new subjects. The Emir of Bokhara, who had thrown two English officers from the top of a tower, gave way with 40,000 men before 4,000 Russian troops. Khodjent fell at the point of the bayonet after a storming of seven days. In these events Kuropatkin first tasted war, and he must still remember the day when the gates of Samarcand were opened to the Russians, and 8,000 of the Tsar's picked troops marched into the capital of Tamerlane. The sub-lieutenant came out of the war a full lieutenant with two crosses of honour.

But he had yet to complete his studies, in which he had done so well that he was allowed to finish them abroad. He came to Berlin, and to Paris, and in the French capital he rendered a service which France has not yet forgotten. He was in France at the fall of Sedan, the siege, and the Commune. He met Marshal MacMahon, and the President invited him to share in the reorganising of the cavalry of France.

WITH SKOBELEFF AT PLEVNA.

It was the young man's opportunity, and General Gelliff will recall to the delight with which he informed MacMahon that the best results of the work were due to Kuropatkin. In that marvellous rejuvenation of France which broke the peace of Bismarck, Alexei Kuropatkin played his part. He was given the cross of the Legion of Honour, the first Russian officer to bear the distinction.

Back in his own land, the young lieutenant saw more fighting in Turkestan. Russia fought and won, and in the great campaign which ended in the annexation of Kokand to the general government of Turkestan, Kuropatkin was chief of staff to Skobelev. He was sent to find the famous Yakub Bek and settle a frontier which nobody understood. With a wounded arm, he set out through the wilds against the Tartar tribes, rode 2,500 miles on horseback, and returned in a year with his work well done. He brought back more honours, wrote a book on Kashgaria, and received the Geographical Society's gold medal.

THE GALLANT 30.

Kuropatkin rose high, and was at the right hand of Skobelev when the "White General" stormed Plevna. "Kuropatkin is the only man capable of performing so dangerous a mission," Skobelev said once. We need not recall the great deeds of Plevna. Inside its gates and out amazing things were done. Three thousand Russians fell in one hour in trying to drive Osman Pasha and his Turks to surrender. Kuropatkin, the only officer on Skobelev's staff who remained alive, went to meet the Turks in the redoubt, with three hundred men behind him. He drove the Turks back but returned with a handful of his three hundred, and with a wound in his head which kept him in hospital for a month. Skobelev retreated, leaving 800 dead followers behind him, and in the winter which followed 6,000 more died from the cold. But the brave troops fought on, across sheets of ice, through blinding snows. Plevna had fallen at last, and at Sheino 12,000 Turks laid down their arms.

Kuropatkin added to his fame by a wonderful piece of mining, through which he forced his way into a fortress and laid the foundation of the final conquest of the Mongol borders. Kuropatkin's life has changed since the days of the expeditions into the deserts of Asia, and he has been as great in peace as he was great in war. He was made Governor of the new territories, and under his sway Transcaspia changed from the wild country it had been to a place of towns and cities, with railroads, churches, banks, schools, and cotton fields. It is not surprising that, after eight years, the Governor of Transcaspia was called to St. Petersburg to take charge of the army, to control the machine for which Russia pays thirty millions sterling every year, which can call to arms to-morrow, if the Tsar wills, as many men as there are human beings in London.

FACING A CRISIS.

Kuropatkin is young, as age goes among statesmen. He will be only fifty-six next month. He is an inspiring figure, trusted because he has never been afraid. Five years ago Kuropatkin was warned that the great powder magazine at St. Petersburg was to be blown up within twenty-four hours, and the magazine at Toulon, too. Toulon was outside his sphere, but Kuropatkin, who received the warning while in bed, rose and went at once to the St. Petersburg magazine stores. Calling together officers and men, he inspected the stores, declared the inspection satisfactory, and gave every man three days' leave as a token of his pleasure. Within an hour the stores were empty. Other guards and sappers were summoned; a rampart was dug round the magazine, and before night it was certain that any danger that had existed had been averted. Nothing happened; but next morning the powder magazine at Toulon was blown up.

"In war," said Napoleon, "men are nothing; the man is everything." In Russia men are nothing, but the Tsar owes his empire, with all that it is for good or for ill, to the man whose watchword from the cradle to the grave is "Mighty Russia and the Tsar." Among such great Russians is the War Lord of to-day. From his youth up to now, "Mighty Russia and the Tsar" has been the gospel of Alexei Nikolaievitch Kuropatkin.

THE CROWN LAND CASE.

JUDGMENT.

In delivering judgment in the action brought by Cheung Kam Tin, compradore, of Wellington Street, against Creasy Ewens, solicitor, for 19,382.01 damages, and interest on this amount from the 30th October, 1903, the Chief Justice said he had carefully examined the bill which the defendant sent to plaintiff in November of 1901, and which was paid in March of 1902, and it was perfectly clear that Mr. Ewens, in drawing that bill, did not attempt to ask the plaintiff to pay for the agreement as he was acting for the vendor. At this time the present action was not pending, therefore, His Lordship did not think Mr. Ewens was solicitor for the plaintiff when the agreement was made. With regard to the plaintiff's allegation that Mr. Ewens said he could get a 75 years' lease for the whole of the land, His Lordship did not believe any intelligent man would allow such an important matter as that to be left out of the assignment, if it was to be for 75 years for the whole. Unless the man was a fool he would have taken great care that it was in the assignment. The plaintiff had, whilst in the box, shown himself to be a very acute man, and His Lordship thought he would have had it stated in the assignment. Mr. Rumjahn had stated that at the time he would have given three lakhs for the land for 75 years. The plaintiff only gave $99,000. His Lordship thought and found that the assignment and the agreement represented precisely what was intended by Mr. Ewens, and he did not believe the statement of the plaintiff's that there was an absolutely inconsistent and supplementary clause verbally arranged between the parties, at the very time they had hardly signed. The Chief Justice did not believe for one minute that Mr. Ewens said he would guarantee he could get a 75 years' lease for the whole. In the first instance it would be absurd. If he had said it the plaintiff would have insisted on having it put into the deed of assignment. Mr. Ewens acting without another solicitor in the matter might have an effect on the case, but His Lordship did not think it ought to. There must be judgment for the defendant with costs, and that judgment was given. His Lordship did not think this case had shown any fault whatever or any negligence, but he did think it one that showed how very much more prudent it was when dealing with property of very large value, to have a solicitor on each side.

R. A. O. B. BALL.

AT THE CITY HALL.

The officers of King Edward VII Lodge, Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes, deserve every praise for the delightful entertainment provided to over two hundred dancers at the City Hall last evening. These gentlemen included Messrs. J. H. Oxberry president; G. G. Burnett, vice-president; Yung Lee, treasurer; J. J. Blake, secretary; E. W. Rogers, Hung Mak Hoi, J. Johnson, I. P. Madar, Goodall, R. A. Collins, S. Musso and Staff-Sergeant Hyett. The preparations made for the comfort of the guests were carried out with much thoughtfulness and taste, and at the conclusion of the dance, about four o'clock this morning, it was agreed on all sides that the first ball of the Hongkong Buffaloes was a success in every sense of the word. The function commenced at nine o'clock, when bandmen of the Sherwood Foresters struck up a quadrille, and got nearly a hundred couples into step on the well polished floor of St. George's Hall. On either side hung flags of every description, while bayonets and spears bristled on the walls. Elsewhere decorations had been effectively displayed, the grand staircase receiving considerable attention, H.E. Major General Villiers Hutton, C.B., having lent several trophies for the occasion, while Mr. R. A. Collins, and the Committee of the City Hall assisted in several ways, towards this end. Mr. J. H. Oxberry and Staff-Sergeant Hyett were the M.C.'s.

HONGKONG METEOROLOGICAL.

SIGNALS

A NEW CODE.

We have received from the Hongkong Observatory a new code of meteorological signals which comes into force at Hongkong on New Year's Day. They are the same as those at present in use at Shanghai, and will be hoisted on the mast beside the time-ball at Kowloon Point for the information of masters of vessels leaving the port. They do not necessarily imply that bad weather is expected. The signals are as follows:—A cone point upwards indicates a typhoon to the North of the Colony.A cone point upwards and drum below indicates a typhoon to the North-East of the Colony.A drum indicates a typhoon to the East of the Colony.A cone point downwards and drum below indicates a typhoon to the South-East of the Colony.A cone point downwards indicates a typhoon to the South of the Colony.A cone point downwards and ball below indicates a typhoon to the South-West of the Colony.A ball indicates a typhoon to the West of the Colony.A cone point upwards and ball below indicates a typhoon to the North-West of the Colony.Red Signals indicate that the centre is believed to be more than 300 miles away from the Colony.Black Signals indicate that the centre is believed to be less than 300 miles away from the Colony.The above signals will, as heretofore, be hoisted only when typhoons exist in such positions or are moving in such directions that information regarding them is considered to be of importance to the Colony or to shipping leaving the harbour.

NIGHT SIGNALS.

Two lanterns hoisted vertically indicate bad weather in the Colony and that the wind is expected to veer.Two lanterns hoisted horizontally indicate bad-weather in the Colony and that the wind is expected to back.The signals are repeated on the flagstaff of the Godown Company at Kowloon, and also, by day only, at the Harbour Office and on the M's Receiving Ship.

LOCAL STORM-WARNINGS.

The Colony itself is warned of approaching typhoons by means of the Typhoon Gun placed at the foot of the mast, which is fired whenever a strong gale of wind is expected to blow here.

NOTICE BOARDS.

Notice boards are placed at:—
Joint Cable Companies' Office.
Ferry Company's Pier, Ice House Street.
Blake Pier.
Post Office.
Harbour Office.
Ferry Company's Pier, Kowloon.WEATHER-FORECASTS and STORM-WARNINGS are exhibited on the above boards daily about 11 a.m., and also at other hours, day or night, whenever necessary. Information of importance is also issued by "Express."THE CHINA COAST METEOROLOGICAL REGISTER is exhibited at the same places daily about noon. It contains observations made at Hongkong and at a number of stations in the Far East, together with Remarks, Weather-forecasts, and information regarding the existence and movements of typhoons based thereon.

SPECIAL INQUIRIES.

Masters of vessels or their agents may,
whenever necessary, call at the Telegraph Company's Office in Connaught Road and send telegrams to the Observatory asking for special information without charge. Such inquiries may also be sent from the Police Station at Kowloon Point which is connected with the Observatory by telephone.

THE LAW OF STORMS.

Further information concerning the weather to be expected while signals are hoisted, and sailing directions, are given in "The Law of Storms in the Eastern Seas."

Intimation.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
 This is the result of research and experiment, when attention is directed to the fact that the scientific for the cure of infertile and barren women, science has indeed made a great advance during the past century, and among the by no means least important discoveries in medicine comes that of Therapion, a powerful medicine which will be found in another column. This preparation is unquestionably one of the most genuine and reliable of all medicines ever introduced, and has, we understand, been used in the treatment of hospitals by Record, Rostan, Joliet, Vileau, Mal-goussu, the well-known Chas. Lagneau, and indeed by all those who are regarded as authorities in such matters, including the celebrated Lallemand, and Roux, by whom it was some time since uniformly adopted, and that it is worthy the attention of those who require such a remedy, we think there is no doubt. From the time of Aristotle downwards, a potent agent in the removal of these diseases has like the famed philosopher's stone been the object of search of some hospital, generous mind; and far beyond the mere point of such discovery have been discovered—of the discovery of a remedy so potent as to replenish the fading energies of the confirmed and in the one case, and in the other so effectively, speedily and safely to expel from the system without the aid or even the knowledge of a second party, the poisons of acquired or inherited disease in all their forms as to leave no faint or trace behind. Such is the New French Remedy Therapion, which may certainly rank with, if not take precedence of, any of the discoveries of our day, about which no little ostentation and noise have been made, and the extensive and ever-increasing demand that has been created for this medicine wherever it is introduced, appears to prove that it is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. Therapion may be obtained in England "direct" from the proprietor, and of the principal Chemists, and Merchants throughout the Colonies, India, and elsewhere, and also from the following agents in the various districts as Central Africa, the Fiji Islands, St. Helena &c.—Diamond Fields Advertiser, KENNELBY.

AN ALARMED ACTRESS.

TRAGIC STORY ENDS HAPPILY.

"Who that has not been on the stage can know the strain of rehearsals?" asked Miss Alice Hope, a well known West of England Actress. "Many real tragedies are enacted on the other side of the Stage Curtain. Out of sight of the audience, and undreamed of by the public, many a Player fights the Battle of Life against terrible odds."
 "A few months ago," continued Miss Hope, "my health gave way in the most alarming manner. My appetite, which had been always of the best, left me. At night I could get no rest, and in the morning felt more dead than alive. I was a martyr to neuralgia. Of course, I had to eat, but I couldn't digest my meals. Food gave me acute pains in the chest, which made me afraid to tempt my lost appetite. I became so weak that I could scarcely crawl about. Doctors told me I was anemic. A chemist suggested that I should try Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people. I am very pleased now that I acted upon the suggestion. I had only taken a few of the pills when I found that my appetite was returning, I ate my food and enjoyed it, and felt no ill-effects after it."

"Could you sleep better?" the reporter asked.
 "Oh, yes. Not only did I sleep soundly, but I woke up in the morning without any signs of neuralgia or indigestion. At the end of the second bottle I felt as well as ever I had done in my life. I would not be without Dr. Williams' pink pills now on any account."

"Do you know anyone else that has been cured by them?"
 "Yes. After my experience I recommended them to my sister, who is just as enthusiastic over them as I am. She had also suffered very similarly to myself, and owed her restoration to health solely to these pills."

The experience of Miss Hope is that of many who have suffered from diseases arising from poor blood and shattered nerves—anaemia, bile, consumption, eczema, headache, indigestion, kidney diseases, rheumatism, scrofula, Dr. Williams' pink pills have cured these and other diseases in countless cases. Women they especially help in those characteristic troubles which they do not talk about. The pills are not a cure-all. They cure by action on the blood and on the nerves, curing fits, paralysis, locomotor ataxy, St. Vitus' dance, neuralgia. Only the genuine pills, bearing Dr. Williams name, cure. Substitutes never cure. Genuine pills post free from Williams' Medicine Company, Holborn-viaduct, London, for two shillings and ninepence; but can
